Driver Project (History)

Childhood

What is this about?

This project teaches children about everyday life and families today, including comparisons with childhood in the 1950s, using artefacts and a range of different sources.

Why is this relevant to us?

It encourages us to explore our own memories and compare them with how children have grown up in the past. Learning about childhood also builds empathy, as we see how different environments and cultures affect children's lives. It reminds us of the importance of family, friendships, and play in developing social and emotional skills.

Enrichment Possibilities

We hope to go on a trip to Sherbourne Museum as well explore more about this through Continuous Provision.
